

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT MAGNIFLEX MATTRESSES

Q. IS THE THICKNESS OF A MATTRESS AN INDICATION OF ITS QUALITY?

The materials from which a mattress is made is far more important than the thickness. Some low-quality mattresses can be extremely thick due to large springs and substandard foams. Magniflex mattresses consist of high quality, durable, and patented foams so even our thinner mattresses provide correct support for your body.

Q. DOES A MATTRESS NEED TO BE HARD IN ORDER TO BE GOOD FOR ME?

This common misconception is incorrect. Magniflex mattresses offer correct support regardless of comfort level or price. The level of softness or firmness is a question of preference. Whether your Magniflex mattress is soft or hard, it will give you the same correct back support you need.

Q. WILL A MEMORY FOAM MATTRESS MAKE ME WARM AT NIGHT?

Compared to other memory foam mattresses, the patented Memoform formula by Magniflex, responds mainly to the pressure of the body rather than to body heat. Our Memoform range also features mattresses with Outlast fabrics designed to keep you at a comfortable temperature.

Q. WHAT TYPE OF BEDBASE/FRAME SHOULD I USE FOR MY MAGNIFLEX MATTRESS?

Magniflex recommends the use of wooden slatted bedbases, as these allow air to circulate through the mattress freely, helping with transpiration of the mattress. The transpiration process ensures greater hygiene and a healthier environment, ideal for people who suffer from allergies or respiratory problems.

Q. SHOULD I TURN MY MATTRESS?

Due to the durability of our foams it is not necessary to turn the mattress, and In fact some of our models are designed to be used on one side only. For double sided mattresses you may turn your mattress to ensure equal distribution of use.

Q. ARE MAGNIFLEX MATTRESSES MEDICAL?

Unfortunately, many companies claim to manufacture medical mattresses as there is no official definition of what a medical mattress is. Certain Magniflex mattresses have been recognised as Medical Devices in Italy but we refrain from calling ours medical mattresses. All Magniflex mattresses are designed to provide correct support for your body and with your health and well-being in mind.
